Showjumping Legend

There is much that could be said about Morris Clarke, but it can all be summed up in two words 'Showjumping Legend'.

Morris, from Mortlake in western Victoria, was certainly a champion showjumper in his day and is not only still competing successfully to this day, but has passed on his skills and knowledge to his children Tim and Kate who have both become exceptional jumpers in their own right.

Morris was interested in horses as a young boy and started riding borrowed ponies around Mortlake before acquiring his own horse as a teenager and starting to make good progress with his riding. As a young man he was involved with horses in many ways, working racehorses for a neighbour, as well as playing Polocrosse and being involved with the Western District Pony Club.

Morris married Judy in his early 20's and as a team, they started producing horses for Jumping and Eventing. His jumping continued to develop, which saw Morris compete at World Cup level on several horses as well as represent Australia in Japan, New Zealand and in Australia as part of an International Businessman's Group (IBG) competition. All this while running a pie factory in Mortlake, which employed approximately 200 people with 50 delivery vans on the road.

Morris encouraged Tim and Kate in the sport, often giving them the ride on his top horses so they could have success and travelling far and wide to shows around the country to give them both experience. Tim and Kate both became successful World Cup competitors with Tim named the Equestrian Victoria Athlete of the Year 2013-14.

As with many who have spent a life in the saddle, Morris has had his fair share of major injuries along the way. A broken pelvis once had him confined to a wheelchair for 2 months and he has had several operations on injured shoulders. On another occasion, a horse stood on his leg causing a severe break, which required a chartered plane flight from Tamworth to Melbourne for treatment. And four years ago... Morris also won possibly his biggest battle – with Prostate Cancer.

Such is his passion for the sport, that through all this Morris was determined to keep riding and is more involved than ever. Morris happily still competes up to 1.20m and he loves to watch Judy riding Dressage, where he has become a wonderful test caller. At shows he loves nothing more than assisting his extended family, especially his two grandchildren who are just starting to ride their ponies.

David Sheppard – bringing his skills (and his new puppy!) to the state titles

There can be no doubt that one of the essential elements of a good show is the course design and the Victorian State Titles are very lucky to have one of the best in the business David Sheppard looking after things. David, a Level 3 FEI Designer brings with him, not only a great passion for the sport, but a long history of experience and involvement with jumping.

David started out his involvement in jumping as a rider at pony club level, but was soon drawn to course designing mainly because he was intrigued by it and hardly anyone no one else was doing it!

After moving to the Yarra Valley in the 1990's, David joined Melbourne Showjumping Club and learnt much of his trade from Reg Cleland and John Vallance. He assisted Graeme Watts at Melbourne Royal Show in 1999, as well as assisting Werner Deeg at Sydney Royal Show for three years. David gets great satisfaction from course designing by in his words "producing good sport and seeing a nice horse well trained and well ridden at the head of the lineup".

The list of significant events he has designed courses for is almost endless, including multiple Australian Jumping Championships, Equitana, Melbourne Royal, Melbourne Three Day Event and over 25 World Cup Qualifiers in the three eastern states.

Community spirit is huge in our sport and this has never been more evident than recently at the Shepparton World Cup Show, when a number of riders masterminded a secret plan - now known as 'Operation Blue Dog'. David and his trusty best friend, Blue Heeler 'Mindy', were often seen at shows in Victoria and NSW, but sadly, during a severe storm in July 2020, Mindy ran away and they are yet to be re-united. David is so loved by all in the Jumping community that a number of riders recently banded together and surprised David with the gift of a puppy – there were not many dry eyes that evening! David and his new best friend 'Billie' were a popular sight at the Werribee World Cup held just a week later.

Thank you David for all that you do to keep the sport of Jumping on track!

Cavalor Equicare Jumping Victoria State Titles hosts stars from around the country

Showjumping in Australia has never been stronger and we are now seeing Australian Jumping talent shine all over the world.

This year's Victorian Jumping Titles sees a galaxy of stars descend on Werribee Park National Equestrian Centre (WPNEC) to compete in the Senior Championship which are the feature classes of the show.

Big names on the draws for this year include local legend and 1996 Atlanta Olympian, Russell Johnstone as well as 2012 London and 2016 Rio Olympian Patterson-Robinson (JPR), who will be travelling down from Sydney with Equador MVNZ, who was just named the best performed Section 2 horse at Sydney Royal.

Speaking of Sydney Royal, Jamie Winning-Kermond has made the trek down from Sydney, bringing Yandoo Oaks Constellation, who after a fantastic week, was named the Best Performed Jumping Horse at Sydney Royal. As if that wasn't enough, the Best Performed Young Horse from Sydney Royal, Nopal Van Tallaert and Amber Fuller are here, with Amber also bringing her 2018 Australian Senior Championship horse CP Aretino.

James Arkins, fresh back from a few months campaigning in the US, has chosen to return to domestic competition at the Victorian State Titles where he will be competing against a number of young guns who are stepping up to Senior Competition. These 'youngsters' include second, third and fourth placegetters in the recent Australian Young Rider Championships in February, namely Conor Reed from South Australia and Jess Rice-Ward and Amelia Douglass, both from NSW.

Defending against these interstate raiders are of course a number of Victorian-based stars, including Paul Brent, Ally and Andrew Lamb, Brook Dobbin and Phillip Lever.

All in all, it promises to be a thrilling competition.
